Local Author Collection Development Policy

This purpose of this collection is to allow for the inclusion of local author's works in the Roseville Public Library's collection and to provide our community access to locally written materials.

The definition of a local author is a community member of Roseville, Placer County or Sacramento County.

Materials donated to the Roseville Public Library by local authors will be considered under this specific collection development policy. The library will try to locate reviews by professional library, publishing, or popular magazines will be sought. Materials that do not have such reviews will be reviewed quickly. Items containing graphic sexuality, language or violence may not be selected if the material does not offer other value in terms of overall content. Materials that, on a cursory examination, incite hate crimes or violence against any specific group will not be included. The Library will not assign staff to read, watch or listen to materials closely

The Library inclusion or rejection of donated material in the collection does not imply agreement or disagreement with any ideas in those materials.

The collection will be reviewed for weeding on a regular basis following the library's collection development policy.

If material will not be added, the author will be notified within 90 days if contact information is provided at the time of donation. Material that is not added will be held for pickup by the author for 30 days after notification to the author.
