Preparing a 107 year old locomotive to move for the first time since 1956 required a lot of help from dedicated volunteers.

Lubricating the journal bearings.

A man wearing a grey cap, blue overalls, and brown gloves is working on a large, dark metal engine. He is looking intently at a complex assembly of pipes and bolts. The scene is set outdoors, with a chain-link fence and some foliage visible in the background. The lighting is bright, suggesting a sunny day.

Al DiPaolo of the California Railroad Museum inspects the connections between the engine and the tender.

The engine and tender were separated for the move.

The tender was loaded and moved on Tuesday, October 12th.

Crews prepared the permanent tracks at the new display site.
